MISSIONARY WOMAN FREE, MOTHER HELD FOR RANSOM

Miss Soderstrom, Captured At Shangsthai, Released

4 OTHERS HELD

Two Americans, Two Frenchmen Detained By Bandits

(Special to The China Press)

Lowan, Honan, Nov. 6.—Mrs. Soderstrom, the member of the China Inland Mission staff who was carried away with her daughter when an army of 10,000 bandits looted the city of Shangstai a few days ago, is now being held for ransom by the robbers. Her daughter, however, has been released and is reported safe.

It has been ascertained that in addition to Mrs. Soderstrom the bandits hold two other American missionaries from West Honan, together with two Frenchmen, one of them a priest.

It is reported here that the village of Ingcheofu, in Anhui province, has been looted by the bandits.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 6.—The efforts to obtain the release of the missionaries, Messrs. Fosberg and Lundeen, who were seized by brigands at Juchow on October 13 have not yet succeeded. Both are, however, in daily communication with their families and state that they are well treated and are availing themselves of the opportunity to preach the Gospel to their captors. As funds and valuables on the premises when the missionaries were kidnapped were left behind the brigands' motive is presumed to be purely political. It is supposed that the prisoners are being held to enforce demands to be made to the authorities. Local officials are confident of their release.

COUNCILMEN BACK AFTER VISIT PAID PINCHIAO QUARRY

The Municipality's quarries at Pingchiao were visited by members of the Municipal Council and of the Chinese Advisory Committee over the week-end, the delegation being the guests of the Public Works Deparment and Mr. Pratt, the quarry superintendent, and Mrs. Pratt.

The visitors left for Pingchiao in two separate parties. Messrs. H. G. Simms, the chairman of the council; W. P. Lambe, councillor; C. Harpur, Commissioner of Public Works; Y. S. Ziar, and K. P. Chen, advisors, left on Friday afternoon by the motor launches Pursuit and Speedy, while Mr. N. O. Liddell, Secretary and Commissioner General and Mr. Jabin Hsu, advisor, left by train on Saturday morning. Both parties arrived at the quarry district shortly after three o'clock Saturday afternoon.

An inspection of the various departments of the quarry was made, including the blasting, drilling, cleaning, breaking, crushing and transportation. A spectacular blasting, which brought down over 800 tons of rock from the top of the quarry was made about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon in honor of the visitors.

The rest of Saturday and Sunday morning were spent in climbing the neighboring hills and cruising in the Grand Canal and its creeks. The entire party, with the exception of Messrs. Ziar and Chen returned by motor launches yesterday morning. Messrs. Ziar and Chen will return by train today after spending the day in Hangchow.

COUNTRY FAIR AT COLLEGE GROUND DRAWS THRONG

Country people and Shanghai folk to the number of several hundred flocked to Shanghai College Saturday to attend the "country fair" held on the college campus. The exhibits were many and varied and the promoters expressed great gratification over the interest created by the show.

The Hudford Garage exhibited motor cars, and the College of Agriculture and Forestry (University of Nanking) had an exhibition of sample seeds and farm products. Southeastern University had a similar display with samples of soils and fertilisers including photographs and samples comparing American and Chinese cotton.

The Yangtszepoo Social Center had good exhibits of knitted work, embroideries, and toys of various sorts, that are made in their industrial department. The women from nearby villages, working under the direction of Mrs. Elam J. Anderson, contributed excellent samples of needlework to the show. Even the college Kindergarten, consisting of country village children, and the Gate School, and village schools conducted by Shanghai College students in Shen Ka-hong and elsewhere, had modest exhibits.

VINTAGE OEUFS

The Science Department of the College showed the village people the mysteries of wireless sending and receiving stations; and in another room had a Food Exhibit, with various kinds of edibles, among them eggs marked "One hundred years old," and priced "Three for ten cents."

Several cooks for American families on the campus baked cakes and pastries for an exhibition and were given blue ribbons and prizes.

The Department of Biology exhibited rabbits, guinea pigs, goats, and a fine collection of fowls of the best breeds: white leghorns, blue andalusians, black minorcas, plymouth rock, light brahmas, etc.

The Commercial Press sent an exhibit of educational charts and models for the exhibition. The Council of Health Education, of 4 Quinsan Gardens, had also a useful set of charts. Everywhere there were cheerful students who patiently explained to groups of interested country people what the charts and other exhibits were intended to teach.

In the afternoon large mass meetings were held both in the Science lecture hall and in the Chapel; at the former there were moving pictures and at the latter there were the usual sleight of hand and other performances that always delight a Chinese audience.

The Alumni and ex-students, together with members of the faculty, had tea and a warm social gathering at President White's house.

Christmas Card Wins The St. Leger; Old Bill And Maresfield In Champions

Great Crowd Sees Opening Of Autumn Meeting; Rain And Wind Slow Up Ponies Appreciably; Hallowe'en Pays $648 Dividend

Rain did its best to throw a wet blanket over the opening day of the Fall race meeting yesterday but failed to keep a record crowd for the first day's racing away from the track and interfered but slightly with a splendid program of events.

The feature of the day was the victory of Christmas Card in the Shanghai St. Leger, the sixth event on yesterday's program, although considerable interest attached to the victory of Hallowe'en in the Fah Wah Stakes with a dividend of $648.20—a complete upset of all the dope which had Salvation as a top-heavy favorite. Several other upsets occurred during the day and dividends for outside winners made the day a good one for takers of long chances.

Today's racing begins at 11:30 o'clock with ten races scheduled, including the Chinee Cup and Shanghai Stakes, the third race. The first race after the tiffin interval will be run at 2 o'clock.

Christmas Gift won the first race, the Maloo Plate, from a field of 22 starters, many owners attempting to qualify ponies as early in the meeting as possible. Christmas Gift, which was already well fiked for the Champions, won easily by ¾ length with The King second and Sir Colin third, with the betters picking the first three in good fashion.

OLD BILL QUALIFIES

Old Bill, probably the favorite pony on the course, qualified for the Champions—which it has already won twice—by nosing out the Day Stable's favorite, Shenkoland, in a beautiful finish. Dallas on Shenkoland pressed the little black in front of the grandstand, but John Johnstone celebrated his return to the Shanghai course by taking Old Bill past the wire one-half length to the good.

Skyscraper, one of the favorites with the bettors, took the lead and held it to the Widow's Monument where Mr. Johnstone called on Old Bill, who had been back with the bunch. Shenkoland, too, responded to Dallas, and the pair raced for the finish, staging a struggle in the stretch. Old Bill won by half a length, with Shenkoland leading Eric Moller on Zenda and a $53.30 place dividend, by a length and a half. Skyscraper was a disappointment, getting lost in the shuffle at the Monument. Jet was fourth.

THE TINY BIRD WINS

Zenda's dividend was the first big one of the day but in The Maiden Stakes, half an hour later, there was a terrific upset. The Tiny Bird winning the race for griffins and paying 31 lucky birds each $53.20, while Dallas rode Highland Fling to a second place and a dividend of $76.40. There were 76 tickets on the pony. Kenny Brand rode The Tiny Bird to a three-quarters of a length victory. Moller was third on Skylight.

Chang Tso-lin was the griffin picked by the dopesters and was the hot favorite to take the griffins classic. Chinhai was away to a big lead with the flag with The Hook, second, and Terminal, third. Ukelele figured in the picture but coudn't stand the hard going rounding into the stretch and faded with the others while Brand and Moller emerged from the pack. Dalgarno made a great bid for the second place.

Rain began falling during the tiffin interval and there were light, intermittent showers during the afternoon. The course, however, remained in good shape for today's events.

HALLOWE'EN PAYS $648.20

The Fah Wah Stakes, a mile and a half, and the first race after tiffin, went to Hallowe'en, with Knoll up, and thereby hangs a tale. The pony was backed by 21 persons and when the race was over, each of the 21 stepped to the window and received exactly $648.20 from the smiling Chinese cashier. And the pony beat Nationalist by a length, with Salvation, the red-hot favorite and figured by hundreds as one of the probables for The Champions, finishing a third after a last-minute brush with Nationalist. Salvation's defeat was a blow to the Day Stable hopes as Shenkoland had been previously beaten.

Hallowe'en won the race in the last dash for the wire, in a thrilling finish. Kenny Brand was already to snatch the victory when Knoll sailed by him and won by a length. Brand finished a neck ahead of Dallas on the disappointing Salvation.

But there was more to the story. King's Cross had stepped out with the drop of the flag and took the lead. Many figured the pony to flivver at the Monument or the turn but down the stretch sailed the dun with Vida up. Passing the grandstand Kings Cross seemed to die in his tracks and first Hallowe'en, then Nationalist and finally Salvation, passed him.

Hallowe'en in addition to the $648.20 win dividend, delighted

CONGRESSIONAL ELECTIONS ON IN AMERICA TODAY

Republicans Standing On Record, Democrats Attack Tariff

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Nov. 6.—The issues in most States in the forthcoming elections are many and involved and consequently local often outweigh national considerations, but in a number of States candidates are appealing on the Republican record and the results from this are expected to reveal the popular feelings on the new tariff, foreign debts, the ship subsidy, prohibition, labor, taxation and other economic questions.

Wall Streets is particularly anxious at present for a clear answer one way or another in order that the Administration may be encouraged to pursue a more definite policy during the next two years in their efforts for the readjustment of post-war conditions.

Representatives Of 14 Cities Here To Repair Woosung Dyke

Decision Made As A Result Of Visit Of Civil Governor Han

The Woosung dyke, which has been out of repairs for many years, will undergo reconstruction beginning next year, according to the decision of representatives of 14 cities under the prefecture of Shanghai at a meeting held on Sunday. Taoyin Wang Keng-ting of Shanghai presided over the gathering which met at his yamen. The repair work will cost about $300,000, which be equally shared by the financial authorities of the 14 cities.

Another meeting was held yesterday at which a provisional committee in charge of the work was appointed. The decision was reached as a result of a recent visit made by Civil Governor Han Kuo-chung of Kiangsu, who styled the dyke as "dangers to life and property within its range."

Fleet Waiting To Take Advantage Of Recent Ruling

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Nov. 6.—The prohibition authorities are circulating in the Press sensational accounts of the presence of a fleet of over 100 vessels laden with whisky off New Jersey, just outside the three-mile limit. The authorities are of opinion that the vessels are taking advantage of the recent ruling forbidding the interference of officials outside territorial waters. The fleet is said to be under the skilful direction of a well-protected international organisation of bootleggers, who manage to land whisky supplies in small boats at unguarded points. The authorities are mobilising hundreds of small craft in New York and Atlantic City and elsewhere in the hope of intercepting the smugglers before they reach the land.

JAPANESE STABS GREEK IN BACK ON SZECHUEN ROAD

Nipponese Claims He Made Attack To Avenge Insult

Creating a near-panic among morning pedestrians in the Central district, a Japanese named I. Murako rushed upon a Greek named C. Baronmys near the intersection of Szechuen and Ezra Roads at about 9 a.m. yesterday and stabbed him three times in the back.

The Greek shouted for help and clung to his assailant until a foreign policeman reached the scene and placed the Japanese under arrest, a huge crowd collecting meanwhile.

Baronmys was rushed to the General Hospital, where it was reported that his wounds are not serious, and the Japanese was taken to Central police station.

The Greek declared that the attack was entirely without provocation, but Murako is said to have stated that the reason for his action was that Baronmys insulted him about a fortnight ago in Hongkew Park and that he was trying to avenge the insult.

Murako was charged with attempted murder and was turned over to the Japanese authorities.

ITALIAN SAILORS GIVEN ENJOYABLE ENTERTAINMENT

There was feasting, frolic and fun for five all too brief hours at the Town Hall, Saturday night, when the sailors from the Italian warships, Libia, Calabria and Carlotta, 350 strong, came ashore for a dance that had been programmed by the Italian Naval League. With them they brought the band from the Libia, into whose ranks were included several men of musical training from the Carlotta, making a brass band of 34 pieces in all. Some who had feared that the music would not be equal to the requirements of modern jazz were speedily undeceived when the strains of the first dance number resounded through the hall, melodiously and in perfect tempo.

The women of Shanghai rallied nobly to the assistance of their Italian friends, since the Italian colony is small and it would be impossible for them to furnish 350 dancing partners from their own community, so all the various nationalities aided, the women wearing their prettiest frocks and their escorts keeping religiously to the compact that only men in uniform, blue-jackets preferred, were to dance.

During the evening punch was provided and a tasty cold buffet luncheon that included lobster salad, pate de fois gras, turkey and game was served by Bianchi. The last waltz came at 2 o'clock after which the Italian National anthem was played and the men departed thanking their hosts. The Italian Navy League and hostesses, Signora De Rossi, Mesdames G. A. Bena and Peyton-Griffin, for a mighty pleasant evening.

ALLIES TOLD TO GET OUT OF TURK CAPITAL, BUT DECLINE

Demand For Evacuation Flatly Refused

ANGORA CHESTY

Kemalists Call Occupation Useless, Unnecessary

(Reuter's Service)

Constantinople, Nov. 6.—The Angora Government representative has handed a note to the Allied High Commissioners requesting the immediate evacuation of Constantinople.

The note declares that the Allied military occupation has become useless and impossible now that the Angora Government has taken over the administration of Constantinople.

The text of the Note says that following on the abolition of the personal sovereignty of Turkey the population of Constantinople turned enthusiastically and spontaneously towards the Government and National Assembly. The latter does not intend to overstep by military action the stipulations of the Mudanis Convention regarding the number of gendarmes that may be despatched for the purpose of maintenance of order. The Note expresses the hope that the Allies will give the demand favorable consideration.

Constantinople, Nov. 6.—At the conclusion of a meeting of the Allied High Commissioners and Generals to consider the Angora Note, Reuter learns that a reply was despatched to Angora categorically refusing the demand for the evacuation of Constantinople.

Paris, Nov. 6.—An official Turkish statement denies that the Angora Government intends to repudiate Turkey's debts or to abrogate the administration of the Public Debt.

Constantinople, Nov. 4.—The Cabinet has resigned.

Acting on instructions from Angora, Rafet Pasha, Governer of Thrace, has assumed the Governorship of Constantinople, thus marking the first step in the Kemalist control of Constantinople.

Paris, Nov. 5.—According to a telegram from Constantinople the Sultan has refused to recognise the legality of the Angora Government's resolution dethroning him.

Constantinople, Nov. 5.—Rafet Pasha, Governor of Thrace and also of Constantinople, dramatically announced the change of Government to a meeting of Allied Generals to which he had been invited to discuss the admission of Kemalist Gendarmes to Gallipoli, Chanak and the neutral zones.

The Allies were prepared to agree to this subject to Allied control.

Rafet Pasha declined to admit control in any way but agreed to refer the matter to Angora.

After intimating his assumption of the Governorship of Constantinople Rafet Pasha said he would respect the Mudanis Convention and recognise Allied occupation but he would not admit of interference with the control of internal affairs.

Meanwhile, acting on the advice of Rafet Pasha, an Administrative Council of Constantinople men unanimously decided to break off relations with the Constantinople Government and to carry on its business in the name of the National Assembly to which the chiefs of the Gendarmerie and Police have transferred their allegiance.

This coup d'etat is regarded as greatly complicating the situation. The late Government, though powerless, supplied useful machinery for the exercise of Allied control and the substitution of chauvinistic Nationalist agents is not conducive to the smooth working of relations with the Allies who must continue their control in the interests of public order and safety while the occupation lasts.

The Kemalist Commissary of Religious Affairs has resigned and has requested six months leave as a deputy. This seems to imply that the Kemalist leaders are not so unanimous as it was thought regarding the deposition of the Khalif.

Trotsky Wants The Straits Neutralised

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 5.—Interviewed by the Moscow correspondent of the Observer M. Trotsky declared that Russian territories were still invaded. Rumania occupied Bessarabia and Japan North Saghalien but Russia preferred negotiation to war and was ready at any moment to renew her proposal for complete or partial disarmament.

Russia had in mind an agreement for simultaneous mutual disarmament in conjunction with her Near East neighbors or through a world conference.

Referring to the Straits, M. Trotsky said that Russia's intention was to prevent England breaking through the Straits and thus avoid an otherwise inevitable clash in the Black Sea.

Russia insisted on the neutralisation of the Straits by international agreement and military measures. Turkey should be entitled to possess an army and a fleet and to fortify the Straits.

Pavlowa

Mme. Anna Pavlowa was accorded a great ovation yesterday evening upon the presentation of a new mythological ballet entitled "Flora's Awakening," which allowed her far greater scope for her versatile art than any ballet hitherto presented. When the curtain fell after nearly forty-five minutes of almost continuous dancing on Mme. Pavlowa's part the enthusiastic audience rose and cheered. After numerous curtain calls when the talented dancer was presented with many floral baskets she appeared alone and graciously acknowledged the applause, blowing kisses and saying "My heart is with you dear kind friends, I can say no more."

The events depicted in the ballet take place in a Grecian valley when the Gods come down to take part in the rejoicings of the mortals. When the curtain rises it is early dawn and Flora the Goddes of Flowers, played by Mme. Pavlowa is asleep on a mossy bank amidst the nymphs. Diana the Huntress appears and accompanying her is Aquilon the Golden Wind of Morning who rouses the nymphs from their slumbers.

The last to awake is Flora who gracefully descends from her green couch and leads in the dance. She is wooed by Zephyr, played by Mr. Alexandre Volinine, but Flora being of capricious mind first flirts with him and then rejects his ardent attentions. He enlists cupid to his aid, Mlle. Milda Bustova, and after many fruitless attempts finally wins Flora's love, who falls fainting in his embrace.

Mme. Pavlowa introduced another novelty last night entitled The California Poppy. Wearing a blond wig and a dress whose overskirt was in four paniers to represent the petals of a golden California poppy, the talented artist danced "The Poppy's Day" from dawn when the petals open to the sun until dusk when the night dews cause the poppy to fold its outer covering and droop languidly in sleep.

The closing number on the program was her famous Russian handkerchief dance to Tchaikowski's stirring music. It was the conventional dance of the peasantfolk, but the costumes were designed by Drabik, who is known as the "Russian Bakst."

Mme. Pavlowa's supporting company is excellent. Especial mention should be made of the opening number entitled A Polish Wedding and the splendid achievements of Mlle. Bustova as the dainty bride. Another interesting selection among the "Divertissments" was the conventional Minuet danced to Paderwiski's music.

Volume Of Cotton Goods Sales Greatly Increased

(Reuter's Service)

New York, October 13.—The outstanding feature in the cotton market this week has been the continued and persistent demand for goods and the buying of contracts by mills to fix prices. It is pointed out in trade circles that the volume of cotton goods sales in the past five weeks has been much larger than the trade has been figuring on.

This is best shown in the active efforts in mill centers to turn out more production and in the steady reports that are now coming forward of contracts that were placed direct by some large manufacturing and converting concerns. It is said that many, in fact most, of the leading lines of ginghams are under order for Spring to the extent of the possible output.

A leading local commission house says indications seem to be for another period of inflation and that in such periods the price is of little importance, and consequently there need be little fear, for the next few months at any rate, of any interruption in the demand due to increased values.

This firm suggests 6,500,000 bales as a tentative probability of consumption by American Mills this season, and thinks, in view of the small American crop, that on unfavourable export showing would be of only moderate importance. A leading trade paper here says along this line:

"Ultimately if the present ratio of demand for cotton goods is normally maintained, it will become apparent that this country's mills will consume as much or more cotton than they did in the last crop year. They will certainly consume more than half of the crop now promised. This factor will have to be kept in mind constantly as making a possible basis of new merchandising ideas as to values.

"If there is to be a full demand for cotton the price will be high, and that means that the cost of making goods will be high for some time to come."

Commission houses are beginning to urge mills to provide for their future needs. One house here has written its friends in the mill districts as follows:

"Cotton mills are beginning to realize the importance of protecting their winter and spring requirements by purchasing December to May contracts. The failure of the market to decline below 20 cents notwithstanding the apparently overwhelming predominance of bearish factors has conveyed a warning that few are disposed to let pass unheeded.

"The handwriting on the wall is becoming more discernible daily. The bearish factors prove impermanent; they pass. The bullish factors, on the other hand, are the fundamentals; they persist."

Bulls stress the fact that the South cannot go on marketing cotton indefinitely. The crop will hardly exceed 10,000,000 bales, and with a carry-over of 4,900,000 bales, there will be available less than 15,000,000 bales. If takings are no larger out of this crop than out of last year's, the carry-over into the next season will approximate only 2,000,000 bales, a figure they claim will be too small to contemplate with equanimity.

Memphis reports a better demand for all kinds of cotton at advances ranging from 50 to 100 points. No large business is in progress with British spinners, but Southern mills are taking cotton with freedom and there is a large inquiry from Eastern spinners and some Memphis firms have done an excellent business with them.

A representative of the Japan Cotton Spinning Co., Ltd., of Osaka, Japan, who was in the Galveston market during the week declared that with continued high prices for the staple, Japan will not be in the market for as much cotton this year as she was last. He said Japan is unable to compete in the markets she serves with cotton as high as it is now, and promises to be in the future.

Representatives of the American Cotton Growers' Exchange declare that cotton is being delivered to it more rapidly than was anticipated by the leaders, and that the association will market 1,500,000 bales under the new plan. They say the entire cotton belt will be covered by co-operative marketing organisations next Spring and it is expected that at the beginning of another season approximately 5,000,000 bales of cotton will be under contract for orderly selling.

Spot houses are feeling the effects of these organisations in the loss of business they formerly handled but which is now going to the co-operative societies.

Speaking of boll weevil, one of the Southern trade journals finds that the pest has cost the South as a whole nothing at all. It has merely prevented the continuance of excessive cotton production and enabled the South to obtain a more adequate rate of remuneration for what has been made.

Bridge Over Hudson To Be Stupendous Engineering Work

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Oct. 18.—The proposed North River Bridge, spanning the Hudson from the center of New York City to Weehawken, New Jersey, will be with its connections and terminals "the most stupendous engineering work yet undertaken, surpassing in that respect and also in final cost the Panama Canal," according to Representative Ernest Ackermann of New Jersey. The plan calls for a single span or 3,000 feet without a single pier in the river, hung on four immense cables, suspended from terminal towers 685 feet high or 130 feet higher than the famed Washington Monument in this city.

Dr. Martin Wins Suit Against Mr. P.W. Pate; Defense Charges Fail

Grave Allegations Made "Without A Rag Of Proof," British Supreme Court Judge Finds

Holding that the allegations of unprofessional conduct, lack of skill and negligence made by the defense were entirely unsubstantiated by the evidence, Judge Peter Grain of the British Supreme Court yesterday gave judgment in favor of Dr. Paul Martin against Mr. Percy Wilfred Pate for Tls. 125 with costs. The suit was brought by Dr. Martin on a claim for payment for professional services rendered.

The text of the judgment follows:

The action now before me is one for a claim of Tls. 125 by Dr. Paul Martin for medical professional services rendered to Mrs. Pate, wife of the defendant, at his request between the dates January 8 and January 20, 1921.

The statement of defence denies liability for the payment of the amount on the ground that the plaintiff "conducted himself so unprofessionally, unskillfully, incompetently and negligently that he made a wrong diagosis of the case."

That he administered to Mrs. Pate "Poisonous and noxious or dangerous drugs as morphia, atropine, Rochelle Salts, that she became by reason thereof grievously ill and suffered excruciating pain and unnecessarily prolonged anguish."

That he failed to use proper care and skill and was guilty of gross negligence and utter recklessness, callous neglect and criminal carelessness, that his services were wholly useless, and that he failed to diagnose that she was suffering from typhoid.

There are many other charges thrown wholesale into the Statement of Defence, but those quoted above will be sufficient for me to deal with in detail.

These are most serious and grave charges to bring against a medical man, and one would have thought that they were sufficient to meet the denial of liability to pay the doctor's bill of Tls. 125.

PLACED CAREER AT STAKE

But the Counsel for the defendant added to these serious accusations. I asked Counsel in the course of statements made by him in his address to the Court if he intended to go so far as to suggest that Dr. Martin deliberately concealed the fact of typhoid in order that he might have an opportunity of performing an operation. Counsel's reply was, "This is one inference. He knew he had made a mistake and tried to induce Mr. Pate not to send his wife to any other hospital than Dr. Fearn's, so that he would have no other doctor in attendance, and he would have a free hand to operate, and if he were wrong no one would be any the wiser." It is difficult to conceive a more serious accusation against a medical man than that. When such serious charges as these are made they must be proved, completely, definitely and conclusively, because it is the character and future professional career of the plaintiff that is at stake and placed in issue.

The law on the subject of medical responsibility is very clearly stated in Halsbury. Vol 20, pages 331, 332 and 333. A medical man is responsible if "either through negligence or ignorance he causes injury to a patient." "No general rule as to the degree of skill or knowledge so required" can be laid down, and the question in each case must depend upon the particular circumstances which surround it.

Erle, C. J. (Rich et Uxor and Pierpont F. and F. Vol. III. p. 40) states:—A medical man was certainly not answerable merely because some other practitioner might possibly have shown greater skill and knowledge; but he was bound to have that degree of skill which could not be defined, but which, in the opinion of the jury, was a competent degree of skill and knowledge. It was not enough to make the medical man liable that some man of far greater experience and skill might have used a greater degree of skill nor that even he might possibly have used some greater degree of care.

As Halsbury also states, Vol 20, p. 334, professional negligence in the treatment of a case, if proved, is a sufficient answer to a claim by the practitioner for his fees. But it is not enough for the patient to allege that the treatment was ineffective or mistaken, unless such mistaken treatment was the result of ignorance or negligence.

It is not negligence on the part of a medical practitioner to give an opinion, which is afterwards found to be erroneous, provided it is not given negligently (Urquhart) v. Grigor (1864) 3 Macph: Court of Sess P. 283.

MAY MAKE MISTAKES

A medical men who undertakes to perform medical duties is bound to bring to it a reasonable amount of skill and knowledge of his profession, he must not be guilty of negligence nor gross ignorance of his profession Seare v. Prerilice (1807) 8 East 348 Hope v. Phelps 1819 2 Stark 480) Every medical man is of course liable to make mistakes in the same way that any other professional man makes mistakes, it may be from reasons over which he has no control, such as misinformation, etc., but so long as he uses reasonable skill and care he is not liable.

Hill v. Featherstonhaugh 7 Bingham (p 571) was a case where an attorney failed to recover his fees because the work he had done was more harmful to his client than useful.

And Basten v. Butler 7 Easts reports 479 was a case in which the Carpenter could not recover as he had not done the work at all.

Now let us consider the evidence that has been placed before the Court to support these extremely grave charges against a medical man. I will first deal with the question concerning Dr. Martin being refused election to the Society which has been called the Shanghai Medical Society. I fail to see how this matter can in any way be material to the question at issue.

SOCIETY NOT OFFICIAL

According to evidence, this Society is not an official or public society, but merely an Association of medical men who have formed a society reserving to themselves the right to elect or not to elect other medical men as members of the society. It is admitted that the Society does not include all the eminent and skilled medical men in Shanghai, and that there are some medical men of the highest attainments who do not belong. It is true that Dr. Martin applied for election and was refused, the Society having the right, such as any Social Club has, of electing or not as they deem fit. It cannot be suggested that I am to go in to the whole question of the non-election, and decide whether the refusal to elect was reasonable or not, or that I am to assume that he is an unskilful and negligent person because he has not been elected. This evidence can only have been put in as prejudice, and consequently I dismiss it at once from my mind.

CHARGES NOT SUPPORTED

It is alleged that Dr. Martin failed to use proper care or skill in discovering the real nature of Mrs. Pate's malady, that "in utter recklessness he merely guessed at the case as a floating kidney," that he failed to take the usual precaution for an accurate diagnosis, that he had determined to perform an operation, and intended to perform it without X-Ray examination or consultation with any other doctors. Now there is not an iota of evidence to support these contentions. It is abundantly clear on the evidence before me that the doctor had no intention of performing an operation until he had had an opportunity of observing his patient. He preferred having her in hospital for observation, but did accede to her request to remain in the hotel under the care of a trained nurse if she could get one, and having obtained Miss Salter, a trained nurse, did not further insist on the hospital.

The doctor says that he has diagnosed correctly, and that Mrs. Pate has got a floating knidney, or at least a lowered kidney. Dr. Fresson is called, and is of opinion that the diagnosis is wrong. Some X-Rays photos are put in which were taken when she was lying in bed in hospital. Dr. Martin states that even these, by the shadows displayed, shows that his diagnosis is correct, but that if an X-Ray was taken while she was in an upright position, the X-Ray would show positively that he was right. Mrs. Pate at the beginning of June promised to allow an X-Ray to be taken, but in the end left Shanghai without doing so.

EVIDENCE INSUFFICIENT

Dr. Fresson thinks that the shadows indicate a congested liver, which has somewhat pressed down the right kidney, which is not the same thing as a floating kidney. Dr. Lambert thinks the shadow is a kidney shadow and may denote a congested kidney but to ascertain a floating kidney it would be necessary for Mrs. Pate to have an X-Ray taken standing up which was not done, and which Dr. Martin has constantly asked for. This is the evidence on which I am asked to decide that Dr. Martin has made a wrong diagnosis. As Pope, the poet, says: "Who shall decide when doctors disagree?" In any event it is totally insufficient for me, on the strength of these facts, to brand Dr. Martin as a negligent, unskilled and ignorant physician.

NO NOXIOUS DRUGS

Another charge against this doctor is that he administered poisonous and noxious and dangerous drugs to his patient. Now what is the evidence on this? On one occasion he injected a ¼ grain of morphia mixed with some atrophine, when his patient was in acute pain, and thus enabled her to get some sleep. And on another occasion, during the 12 days he was attending Mrs. Pate, he prescribed another small injection of morphia. Dr. Fresson's evidence is, morphia and atrophine should be given with the greatest care in cases of kidney troubles, and I assume that great care should be used on all occasions when giving morphia and also atrophine. The other poisonous drug is Rochelle Salts which was given during the menstruation period when the lady was suffering from constipation. Now what evidence have I got against Dr. Martin's skill here of administering wrongfully poisonous noxious and dangerous drugs? None.

TYPHOID CHARGE

The third charge against Dr. Martin is that he failed to discover that his patient was suffering from typhoid or was sickening for typhoid. Now, typhoid, it is common knowledge, is very difficult in its preliminary stages to diagnose. It takes from 10 days to 3 weeks to develop. During the time that Dr. Martin was attending Mrs. Pate her temperature remained more or less at 101 Fahrenheit, according to Dr. Martin. Miss Salter, the nurse who was attending also states the same; she says sometimes a point or two above, sometimes below. According to Miss Salter's evidence it began to run up on January 21 to 103 morning and 104 evening, which is one of the symptoms of typhoid, but by that time Dr. Martin had ceased to attend on Mrs. Pate; Dr. Martin and Mr. Pate having had a disagreement about the doctors who should meet Dr. Martin in consultation. Mr. Pate wrote on a card to Dr. Martin, "Dr. Fresson has had a consultation with another doctor, and my wife was gone to hospital."

He is also charged with negligence because he did not pay a visit on the morning of January 20. Dr. Martin's answer to that is that he was called in on January 19 evening, that Mrs. Pate said she was in great pain, but her temperature was 99, and 96 Miss Salter says it might have been under 101. He prescribed a little morphia and the patient slept. Her condition was normal, and if necessary he expected to be sent for next day; he was not called for on January 20 and on January 21 he got the card dispensing with his services. There was some discussion as to which doctors Dr. Martin should meet in consultation, and Mr. Pate and Dr. Martin were not quite in accord as to who should be called in, but there is no evidence on which I could safely reply to show that Dr. Martin refused to have another doctor for fear of being found out in making a mistaken diagnosis.

There have also been statements referred to as having been made by Dr. Martin and Dr. Fresson, which have been respectively denied by both of them, and so there is no reason to refer to them.

Now this is the evidence on which I am asked to find that Dr. Martin, knowing he had made a mistake, endeavored to operate on Mrs. Pate without the assistance of another doctor, in order that his mistake might not be discovered.

I can find nothing in the evidence before me on which I could hold that Dr. Martin conducted the case negligently, ignorantly, unskilfully or carelessly. It may be that other doctors are more skilful than Dr. Martin, or it may be he is the most skilful.

It may be that Dr. Martin's diagnosis was and is right, or it may not. I have not sufficient evidence before me to enable me to form an opinion either way.

NO "RAG OF PROOF"

All I can say is that charges of the gravest nature which call for the strongest and strictest proof have been levelled against Dr. Martin without a rag of proof to support them.

There is some question about the number of visits that Dr. Martin paid, by his own medical diary, appearing in their due order and on other patients. There appear to have been 17. Mrs. Pate, not very definitely, maintains that he did not pay his first visit until a day later than shown in the diary, and that on one visit the patient was asleep and he only put his head into the room and spoke to the nurse, and that, therefore, that should not count as a visit. Dr. Martin charges for 17 visits, some for that these charges have not been proved, nor substantiated in any way, that Dr. Martin used analysis of urine (two, I think), a prescription etc. Tls. 125, which in the absence of any evidence to the contrary appears to me to be reasonable.

I can only come to the conclusion that these charges have not been proved, nor substantiated in any way, that Dr. Martin used reasonable skill and care in the course of his medical duties, and that the fees charged are reasonable.

Therefore, judgment will be for the plaintiff for the amount claimed with costs.

In Rain And Sunshine

BY ELSE DUNCAN

Although Shanghai is nowadays a town of considerable size and importance, it has not many books—and especially not many collections of poems—that are published here. The appearance of Else Duncan's poems "In Rain and Sunshine" published by Kelly and Walsh is therefore something of an event.

With some surprise one learns that the author does not by birth belong to an English speaking nation, and the natural reservation with which one always opens a book by an unknown author is therefore doubly pronounced. However one need have had no fear on this score. Else Duncan treats the English language with loving understanding and a rare susceptibility to its finest shades of meaning.

In this little collection of about fifty or sixty short poems there are many which as a whole are far from perfect yet nearly every one of them will, by some thought or some harmonious phrase, reveal the parentship of the true artist, and a few are of such rare beauty that once read they will never be forgotten.

There is in this collection one poem which stands out supreme, and should we have named the book its title would have been: "Blue Roses and other Poems." It is not the wonderful lilt and metrical perfection nor the harmonious combination of words for in several of the poems these qualities are just as pronounced—but it is the strange motive which grips the heart and gives to "Blue Roses" a place apart.

Several of the quite short poems are also exquisite, as for instance "The Sensitive Plant:

The Sensitive Plant is a tropical plant
Of strange and mysterious growth:
It is, like a pure little maiden's soul,
At roughness recoiling and loath.
It shrinks from the touch of inquisitive hands,
And closes its leaves in pain,
Just like a pure little maiden's soul
When close at a word profane."

and "In a Boat:

The lake is shining like molten gold
In the rays of the setting sun,
The pale white mists our boat enfold
Like a web by the fairies spun,
As on we glide to the end of the world
With our sails to each fleeting wind unfurled.
And from the shores as we pass them by
All their scents and their sounds us reach,
But in the boat just you and I
And enough are we each to each.
Through the mist to the sun with sails unfurled,
We two, we two, to the end of the world!"

Mass Disobedience To Wait In India

(Reuter's Service)

Bombay, Nov. 5.—The sub-committee appointed by the Khilafat Committee on June 13 to report with regard to the advisability of restarting civil disobedience has returned from a tour of the country and reports that the country is not prepared to embark on mass civil disobedience but favors disobedience on a limited scale and support abandonment of the boycott of the Legislatures, Governmental and educational institutions and the Law Courts.

The sub-committee is evenly divided with regard to participation in the Legislatures, half being in favor of capturing the Legislatures with a view to obstructing and paralysing the Government and the remainder opposes abandonment of the boycott of the Councils as involving a serious setback to the movement.

The sub-committee urges the organisation of Indian labor with a view to preventing economic exploitation by capitalists and foreigners. The majority opposes Mr. Gandhi's opinion by favoring the boycott of British goods those who figured him to place, with a return of $40.50. The pony won from a classy field, with many Champions possibilities in the pack—and his stock thereby takes a leap. The pony proved a wonderful mount at the mile-and-a-half distance and the finish he staged will mean that he will have many backers tomorrow in The Champions, although the race is 440 yards less.

MIDLAND WINS

Day's Midland proved to be the best of the despised subscription griffins and faith in the pony to the extent of a win bet of five bucks brought a return of $51.60. The pony beat Paddington, the favorite, by a length and a half, the latter mount finishing but half a length ahead of Peterkins, favorite in the Selling Lotteries a week ago Saturday night. There were 26 starters and "among those present" was Barney Google's Spark Plug, which finished fourth.

The pony which carried the name of Cartoonist Billy DeBeck's famous horse which won the Ahadaba Handicap in The Evening Star sport page cartoon strip, was at the tail end at the start and with a little better luck when the flag dropped, would probably have been up among the singers. Spark Plug made a pretty effort in front of the grandstand but had too much to overcome.

ST. LEGER UPSET

Christmas Card's win in the St. Leger was rather an upset as The Peregrine, Crowborough and Colorado were favored in the betting and in the dope. Heard pulled the Fay and Seth pony through in nice fashion, however, winning by three lengths from Dallas on Reorganisation, and several lengths on Knoll, mounted on Allan's Colorado. Oregon took the lead at the post but was unable to stand the pace, and Pastures New, John Johnstone up, gave up after one effort. The Peregrine and Crowborough were not in the running.

The seventh race saw a thrilling neck and neck finish between Billy Hill on The Osprey and Brand on The Gypsy Bird. Dallas on Dreamland took a long lead at the post but was left behind in the bunch at the Widow's Monument when Hill and Brand stopped on the gas. The Osprey and The Gypsy Bird passed the grandstand fighting beautifully and Hill's mount barely nosed the Gypsy Bird out, winning by the usual 'nosk'. The Gypsy Bird was the favorite.

Maresfield, Champion's contender, and the favorite in the eighth race, justified its backers hopes by winning easily by many lengths. Ajax galloped into second place and Conqueror Dahlia finished third. The old favorite, Thomas a Becket with Crokam up, was second choice favorite with the betters but failed to show, and Silver Streak, touted for the Champions, and third favorite in the race, also failed to place.

The ninth race, the Whangpoo Stakes, brought out another batch of grimms and saw the Magpie with Billy Hill up, and a top-heavy favorite, gallop past the judge's stand to an easy win. Skylight, Mrs. Isabel Moller's griffin, finished second by a length over John Peel's Pep, the second favorite. The tenth and last race, run in the dark, saw Del Monte, a subscription griffin, show its heels to Pintail, which finished second, and The Golf Bird, third. None of the other subscription griffins looked very promising.

The summaries follow:

MR. FERRIER HAS LOW SCORE IN GOLF QUALIFYING ROUND, EQUALS PAR ON 23 OF 36 HOLES

The qualifying round for the championship of the Shanghai golf club was played at the Kiangwan course Sunday, the play being over thirty-six holes. Thirty-two were entered and all but three turned in cards. Four players finished in a 173 tie for eighth place.

Mr. J. B. Ferrier, the present club champion, revealed once more that he is the only player of real class in Shanghai, his morning score of 73 being a new Kiangwan course record for competitive play. Mr. Ferrier's cards were:

MORNING

Par	4	4	4	3	5	3	4	4	3	—34
Out	4	5	4	3	4	3	4	4	4	—35
Par	4	3	4	5	5	3	4	3	5	—36—70
In	4	3	4	6	6	3	4	4	4	—38—73

AFTERNOON

Out	3	5	3	3	5	4	4	4	2	—35
In	5	4	5	5	6	4	5	3	4	—41—76

It will thus be seen that in the thirty-six holes Mr. Ferrier equalled par on twenty-three, and that he was better than perfect play on six holes. A half dozen birdies in a brace of rounds at Kiangwan is no mean accomplishment.

As for Colonel Bogey, he was vanquished by the club champion in his morning round by a margin of 2 up, while in the afternoon the Colonel had the better of the argument by the slender margin of one up. In medal play Mr. Ferrier was one stroke better on the day than the chesty old gentleman, having a 149 against the Colonel's 150.

Aside from Mr. Ferrier's scoring there was nothing particularly brilliant about the cards turned in, Mr. Lancaster being second lowest with 159—ten strokes more than the champion. Then there was a jump to 167, Mr. Beath's card, and then to 170 for Mr. Malcolm. The four who were tied for eighth place were Capt. E. I. M. Barrett, Dr. N. H. Bolton, Mr. C. H. Hopkins and Mr. K. M. Cumming, all of whom had 173 for the 36 holes. The scores of those who qualified were:

J. B. Ferrier	73-76=149
W. O. Lancaster	81-78=159
C. T. Beath	88-79=167
H. R. Malcolm	87-83=170

W. S. Clay	90-81=171

Dr. N. H. Bolton	91-82=173

Tonight's Concert

At tonight's extra concert in the local symphony season program the Municipal Orchestra will give the following numbers, from the works of Grieg:

EXTRA CONCERT

Under the leadership of Maestro Mario Paci. "Soloist and Chamber Music". Works by Edw. Grieg.

1.—Sonata O minor Op. 13 for Piano and Violin.
(a) Lento dolorose—Allegro vivace
(b) Allegretto Tranquille
(c) Allegro animato
Maestro Paci (Piano)—
A. Foa (Violin)

2.—Sonata E minor for Piano
(a) Allegro moderate
(b) Andante molto
(c) Alla Menuetto
(d) Finale: Molto allegre
Maestro M. Paci

3.—String Quartet G minor
(a) Un poco Andante—Allegro molto ed agitate
(b) Romanza: Andantino
(c) Intermezzo: Allegro molto vivace
(d) Finale: Presto al Saltarello

A. Foa (1st Violin)—W. Wegman (2nd Violin).
B. Gershgorn (Viola)—P. Brunelli (Cello).

The fifth symphony concert was dedicated to the works of the Bohemian composers Smetana and Dvorak.

Of Smetana we heard two selections of his symphonic poem "My Fatherland." It is a work of remarkable power and very picturesque in treatment. The harp solo at the beginning of Visegrad (old castle in Bohemia) was very well played and in the description of the source of the River Moldau the different instrumental groups had a fine opportunity to show their ability.

Also in the overture "The Bartered Bride" there is much lovely music, original and characteristic, and it was brilliantly played. Though Smetana's music has been long in making its way outside of Bohemia, it has now obtained so strong a hold that it is played the whole musical world over.

From Dvorak, who had a great influence upon the younger Smetana, we had the symphony "From the New World." This work, suggested by his sojourn in America, contains many characteristics of negro music, is full of melodic invention and has a rich variety of coloring. The orchestra, conducted by Maestro Paci, showed great ability in the production of this music, with which it is very well acquainted and the well-filled auditorium gave emphatic evidence of its gratitude.

Court for China yesterday. Miss Weill was represented by Mr. M. L. Heen, while Mr. F. J. Schuhl appeared as counsel for the defendant.

On a motion made by Mr. Schuhl to exclude reporters before the case opened, Judge Lobingier stated that while reporters would not be excluded, he considered it highly desirable by both parties that no report of the testimony be published in the newspapers and so ruled to that effect.

November 6, 1922

Spot and forward bar silver were each down 1-16d in London on Saturday.

The New York price declined to 66¾ cents and the London-New York cross rate to 446.

The only change in our official quotations here today from Saturday was a drop in the Franc rate to 1055.

Our market throughout the morning was inclined to be easy with speculators buyers.

The lowest rate at which the bulk of the business in Sterling was done for December-January was 3-3¼ and the highest 3-3⅜ although a very small business for January was done at 3-3 7-16.

The lowest rate at which Gold Dollars were done was 73 November delivery, 73¼ for December and 73⅜ for forward delivery.

A small amount was done at 73½ for January but there were generally good buyers at this rate.

At the close there were buyers and sellers of January Sterling at 3-3⅜ and of Gold Dollars at 73⅜.

There was again a strong demand for exchange for this month's delivery but banks were unwilling to quote. Banks were quoting 3-4 for Sterling bills, 74¾ for Gold Dollar bills and 1095 for Franc bills.

China again sold silver in London on Saturday and India bought, the market closed easy.

New York also report their market as easy.

Afraid Of The Tiger

(New York Times.)

As a journalist and politician, Georges Clemenceau has collected enemies as carefully as more prudent or milk-and-water temperaments try to collect friends. Of late it has seemed as if a half century of acrimonies and feuds had been poured out at and on that unbowed head. What was he coming to the United States for? How dared he come to the United States? From the Extreme Right to the Extreme Left, from the independent Matin to L'Ere Nouvelle, organ of the Socialist patriot Cailliaux, journal after journal lambasted him. It was "criminal folly" for him to go. The French Government was said to be fluttered by the news of his approaching visit. A great bother was made over the charges of Marshal Franchet d'Esperey that M. Clemenceau stopped his offensive in South-eastern Europe in the Fall of 1918. By some mysterious break in logic what Clemenceau did or didn't do in the Near East in 1918 affected his American trip in 1922.

Now, Marshal Foch, whose severe military policy, founded on the old idea of strategic frontiers, M. Clemenceau wouldn't have incorporated into the Treaty of Versailles, advises the former Premier to stay at home.

He will cry and be sentimental like all old people. . . . He will say to Americans: "You are very naughty; why haven't you ratified the treaty?"

M. Clemenceau doesn't cry, he laughs; and it is a long while since he has been sentimental. Unless the magnificent passion and energy of the patriotism that saved France in her darkest day be now accounted mere sentimentality by his enemies. He has a perfect right to come here. There is no French writ ne exeat regno to keep him at home. Nobody but himself knows what he is going to say. He will speak for himself. He has never shown any desire to shirk the fullest responsibility for his utterances. By his character and career he has made himself to Americans the most interesting of living French civilians. They can never forget his services to France in his last Premiership. They admire his undying vigor, wit, courage, constancy. There is something in him of the volcanic power and fire of the demigods of the French Revolution, but his forcefulness is tempered and sustained by long thought and a scientific education. Finally, he is a great part of living history, a marvelous old man, with a wonderfully youthful spirit. He speaks English and speaks it well. Whatever he has to say Americans will be interested to hear. Why aren't his French opponents eager to get rid of him, even for a few months? Is it because, really, they grudge him the welcome in America which he is sure to have?

The New American Knight Hails From Indiana

Sir Henry Thornton Invents Ball-Bearing Railway Coach—His Early Days In America

(New York Times)

Old-Timers in Logansport, Indiana, have been gathering around the town grocery these last few days swapping yarns about "little Hen Thornton," who used to live there. Today he is Sir Henry Worth Thornton and the boldest of the cracker box prophets have been heard to say that they always knew he would grow up to be something like that. He has been a Knight for several years, and Logansport has put out its chest with proper pride. The thing that started old residents harking back again to his barefoot period was the announcement the other day that their "little Hen," now General Manager of England's Great Eastern Railway, had developed with associates a ball-bearing device which might conceivably revolutionise railroad operation. One dispatch said that a coach equipped with these bearings was "so easily moved that its brakes must be kept on lest the wind start it off." Another message set forth that it required seven men to move a coach without the bearings, but one man could easily move the same coach with these bearings installed. A new steel of such hardness that it is expected to withstand this usage has made the device possible, which would mean a great saving in fuel and prospectively bring about almost any speed.

Sir Henry Thorton is a conspicuous figure in the little group of Americans who have won to big success in England. He has done so many notable things since going there in 1914 that he is looked upon as one of the outstanding personalities in English affairs. Previous to becoming General Manager of the Great Eastern he was Superintendent of the Long Island Railroad, New York, and known as a rising man in the railroad field. His achievements of the last eight years have more than borne out that estimate, at the same time verifying the opinion of the grocery store philosophers in his old home town.

Probably no man ever took up such a job as his under greater difficulties. The first of his difficulties arose when Lord Claud Hamilton, Chairman of the Great Eastern in 1914, said that no man capable of running the road could be found in England, and made known the selection of Thornton. Immediately one section of the press, a large share of the public, and most of the railroad world rose in criticism. "Great Britain has not in many years had such a shock to her pride," commented The Sunday Observer. The things printed were mild compared to the spoken word. It was said that Thornton had made a name for himself by driving his men to the limit, that he was an efficiency expert of the worst sort, and woe to those who fell under his jurisdiction.

In face of all this Thornton gave up his peaceable job at home and went to England. Interviewed at the pier, he remarked that if he didn't make good he always could come back, because a job had been promised him here at any time. It is a matter of record that he did not come back and the things he has done are writ large in the recent history of England. But they were not accomplished without some travail.

The kind of greeting that awaited Thornton may be imagined. Certainly the executives who must work with this stranger to them and their ways looked upon him with questioning eyes, at the very best. And the thousands of men in the Great Eastern's employ were on guard from the first moment. Here was an outlander flying in the face of English conservatism, of every precedent, a man who had been press-agented as capable to hold down a job for which nobody in England was equipped. It took a good deal of nerve and considerable common sense to fare that kind of a beginning.

Thornton had both. He arrived quietly, took up his duties without any blare of horns, and look about him. He was just the kind of man pictured in England for many years as a successful American executive—a big, powerful figure, something like six feet four inches tall, and weighing around 225, with level gray eyes, a close mouth, and an intensive air.

By degrees the Great Eastern's manager won a measure of public confidence. He had gone to work in the Spring of 1914, and the whole world knows what happened in August. Immediately there was a pressure on England's roads such as they never had known before. Troops, artillery, supplies, moved in an unbroken stream to the Channel ports, a large part of the whole over the Great Eastern. Thornton had tackled more than he knew.

An Executive Committee of railroad managers was formed to handle the war traffic, and England took over the roads. Thornton was not on the committee, which might have prompted many men to resentment. Failure to include him was explained in various ways. The Great Eastern went on much as before, with its operating head doing his best to speed men and munitions to France. And presently he was included in the control committee. A little later he became a Lieutenant Colonel and was more intimately concerned in the operation of all the roads. Next he was made a Colonel, and it seemed in the nature of things that his promotion to Brigadier General should come about. By that time the English public had grown pretty well accustomed to the name of Thornton. It was associated with a number of matters that could not be overlooked. Then he was appointed Director of the Channel Transports. In fact, titles were coming his way and before long he had more to do with war transportation than almost anybody else. Verily, Thornton had made good and the men "who knew him when," back in Logansport, would have been proud could they have seen how he handled his new work and wore his new honors. It seemed logical, once more, that these honors should be extended by a grant from King George, making him a K. B. E., which is Knight Commander of the Order of the British Empire, and something that only a few men ever get. He also got the Legion of Honor and other marks of merit.

Thornton—if it is permitted to speak that way of a K. B. E.—might be called a typical product of the American railway school. It was in this field that he made his first venture and where he soon found himself. He had attended St. Paul's School, at Concord, N. H. and made something of a name on the football field. Afterward Thornton was one of the heavies in the line-up at the University of Pennsylvania. Following graduation the future head of the Great Eastern went to work for the Pennsylvania as a draftsman. That was in 1896, and he spent the next few years plowing his way through a hard routine of engineering duties. In 1901 he reached his first real executive job as Superintendent of the Cleveland, Akron and Columbus Railroad, and his climb upward has been steady ever since.

It is easy enough to say that a man has succeeded, but much more interesting to inquire into the reasons of this success. In Logansport they say that "little Hen" wanted to be a Bishop just why nobody knows. How he came to be a railroad man has not been recorded, but it is certain that he soon showed signs of having executive calibre. All of those who knew him in the early days attest to his humanity, love of fair play and unswerving willingness to help the other fellow.

Making Flying Safe

(The London Times)

Every game which man has ever invented is a test of man's endurance and of his power of reacting swiftly and decisively to his surroundings. Sooner or later all games divide their players into three classes: the supermen, who seem to have been born with a natural gift the average good exponents of the game, and those unfortunate individuals who, for one reason or another, "cannot hit the ball."

This general rule applies with but few reservations to the new, great game of flying in heavier-than-air machines. There are, as the war soon showed, born flyers, 'aces' and 'aces of aces'; there are large numbers of good, reliable pilots and observers, and there are also men who, through no fault of their own, cannot succeed in this new enterprise.

The fierce test of war separated the good from the bad with great rapidity. But in that process of separation immense waste of life, of strength, even of material, was occasioned, so that after a time farseeing men began to ask themselves whether or not it might be possible, by the application of scientific tests, to word out the unfit before the day of battle and to preserve the fit against those stresses and shocks which, as experience proved, were sapping the vitality of many of them.

Thus that elusive and romantic body which consisted of the doctors attached to the air force came into being. Its justification is that within a few months the number of 'crashes' had been materially reduced, the fighting efficiency of the service materially improved, the health and 'nerves' of airmen conserved, and a scientific literature and method built up which will bear comparison with any similar body of knowledge in the world.

The direction of this knowledge is toward the discovery of men who cannot, in any circumstances, make good or safe pilots, the detection of the early symptoms of strain or stress in good pilots and the prevention, by various means, of the oncoming of such symptoms in all members of the service.

That there are 'ground-men' as well as 'bird-men' is now established. The people, normal enough at low altitude, exhibit a curious and extreme sensitiveness to changes in barometric pressure. Thus, at very low altitudes, they show the symptoms of distress normally met with at great heights. Thanks to the clever experiments of Martin Flack and others, it is possible to detect them with great ease and certainty.

Such 'ground-men' are rare, yet the importance of excluding them is obvious. Less rare are those individuals who from the constitution of their nervous systems are unable to 'hit the ball.' Success in every game depends in large measure on the rapidity and certainty of our response to a continually varying set of conditions. Eye, ear, touch—all the senses, it

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Can The Mind Be Measured?

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

The true measure of an individual mind is to be found in its ultimate achievement, and not by means of any mental and educational measuring tests. Thousands of school and college graduates, whose standing is high, according to both the old pedagogical and the new psychological tests, fail to fulfil in active life the apparent promise of eminence noted by their examiners and indicated by their class work.

On the contrary, other thousands who failed, or were relatively weak, at the tests have turned out to be leaders and persons of distinction and of uncommon mental activity and power upon entering into real life. This applies even in many cases to scholars in the old classic sense, and in still more numerous cases to scientific and professional workers and leaders; while with many college graduating classes it is the rule rather than the exception among those who achieve distinction in commerce, industry and all kinds of enterprise.

Neither the test examinations nor the probings of "trained psychologists" reach and reveal the solid foundation that is often concealed beneath an undeveloped mentality.

These are truisms, known to every observant person, and they offer the proper basis, or starting point, for the reform of educational methods. They are facts of observation, not fanciful deductions from theories of the wildfire variety whose chief quality is the property of rapidly spreading and kindling.

If we believed the interpretation put upon the wholesale psychological tests made at the beginning of our entrance into the great war, we should have to confess that, so far as mentality is concerned, we are a nation of twelve-year-old children, or worse. The fatal defect in such a system is that the tests are too inflexible, too unnatural, and utterly inadequate in number, variety and adaptability, to plumb the depths of mentality. They fall in that respect even more notably than did Gall's phrenological system, in which he sought to corral all the intellectual and moral faculties of a man within artificial fences of definition.

Because a man is not a Newton or a Laplace or a Zerah Colburn or an Edison or a Standard Dictionary, it does not follow that he is an intellectual weakling nor is he to be ranked as still a child in force of intelligence because he cannot answer questions familiar to others who have studied them, or is not acquainted with scientific ways of looking at, and thinking about, things. Ignorance is not idocy.

Charlemagne could not write, and probably could not read, though others in his time could do both; but he could govern the world with an administrative ability such as few men have displayed in any age.

But, it will be objected that the new measures of mental power are not confined to questions about things that can be learned and remembered, but that they are specially aimed at just the things on which I am insisting, viz, the underlying powers and qualities of the mind. To a certain extent this is no doubt true, as far as intention is concerned, but a close examination will show that the tests finally do resolve themselves into a mere examination of acquired faculties and habits of mental action. They may partially reveal the stage that the evolution of the mind has already attained, but they give no information about the capacity for further, or other, evolution that lies behind.

One great fault, it seems to me, with all attempts made through the schools to measure, or estimate, the intellectual powers of youth, lies in the fact that too much stress is put upon early—I would even say, premature—development.

It is another notorious fact, in addition to those with which we began, that youthful prodigies commonly turn out failures in middle life, and often earlier. The strongest minds are those that develop with relative slowness. Leaving out of account the few great geniuses who have astonished the world by their achievements when they were just passing from youth into manhood, I think it is unquestionable that the world's most useful men and women, and most successful, have been those who ripened rather slowly, so slowly in many cases that the tests of the schools would have passed over their heads because their real stature had not yet been attained.

Young men often feel, despite their rejection by pedagogues and psychological experts, that there is a slumbering power in them. Let them bank on that feeling; it is apt to be sound.

may be—must so swiftly inform the brain of new calls for action that the muscles may be brought into full play in the flicker of an eyelid. Delay is not only dangerous, it is fatal.

Yet some of us are natural delayers. The mechanism of the reception of calls for effort is abnormally slow in its action, and so our response comes too late. When we strike, the ball has already passed.

In the air, and notably in air fighting, that spells ruin. Many a gallant fellow lost his life, in the early years of the war, because he was attempting to do what nature, in his case, had forbidden absolutely.

The general term "reaction-time" has been applied to the rate of response. It varies a little in every individual, but there is a limit of variation below which air pilots should never fall.

Thus, the methods of measuring "reaction-time" which have been devised are of vital importance both to commercial and military flying. For this one cause alone a special body of trained investigators is a necessity of our air service.

Again, a vast amount of work has been done in devising safeguards against the strains and stresses of flying. One of the symptoms of stress is breathlessness, or oxygen want, and one of its consequence is a dulling of mental faculties and impairment of judgment and perception. This is a common disability, yet until the method of giving oxygen at high altitudes was devised it often passed unnoticed.

Worse than that, pilots, with their judgment dulled, frequently had an unwarranted sense of well-being and security. The case is cited of two flight commanders who declared they were just as fit at 20,000 feet as on the ground, and who scoffed at the use of oxygen. But a week later, having both used oxygen for a long flight of more than three hours, over 18,000 feet, they were loud in their praises of the benefits conferred, and made its use compulsory among their pilots and observers.

Many cases are on record of the curious efforts of "oxygen want." Thus, a pilot in a Bristol "fighter," meeting a patrol of the enemy, failed to realise his danger, and in spite of the protests of his observer gayly waved his hand to them.

In another instance a squadron commander was returning from a long bomb raid at 17,000 feet, using oxygen. As he did not begin to descend after crossing our lines his observer roused him and discovered that he had been doing, his oxygen supply having failed.

It is manifest that measures such as the proper use of oxygen, which preserve the mental clarity of the airman are of incalculable value. We are at present only at the beginning of the study and discovery of such safety devices.

In order to make flying safe for the world the policy inaugurated with the assistance of the Medical Research Council must be carried forward. To allow this work to drop would be worse than folly; a crime against humanity.

Wuchang Students Talking Of Strike

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, Nov. 2.—Fifteen government schools and colleges of Wuchang are promoting a general strike among all schools in that city as a protest against the oppressive measures taken by authorities of the Government Foreign Languages School and the Girls Normal College where ringleaders of student movements were dismissed without justifiable cause. Representatives of the 15 schools met at a conference this week, and seven schools promised to take the lead in the strike.

Agents of the Wuhan Students Federation are now approaching schools in Wuchang to come to give up lessons until the wrongs of their fellow students are righted. In view of the strike fever which is gaining strength, the Educational Commissioner is quite scared at the movemcnt, and has reopened the Foreign Language School which was closed by order of the Tuchun on account of student opposition against school administration.

Mr. Hu Chun-ho, a graduate of Hongkong University, who was appointed by the Tuchun to reopen the school, has issued orders announcing that the school is prepared to take in new students after holding another entrance examination.

The students federation however has called the attention of the Educational Commissioner to their demands for the dismissal of unqualified school presidents and the unconditional return of the dismissed students to their respective schools. Circulars and leaflets are being distributed by the Students Federation urging that united action should be taken in dealing with officials so that a new foundation for education may be built up.

Chinese Chambers Object To Stamps

(Eastern News Agency)

Hankow, Nov. 4.—At the joint conference of the Chinese Chambers of Commerce which was held today, the first four items discussed were in connection with stamp-duty. This matter was referred to the committee of inquiry. The fifth item, which was introduced by the representatives of Kwangtung, was one setting forth that loans tend to lead the country to ruin, which was also referred to the committee of inquiry.

The sixth and last item demanded revision of the law of Chambers of Commerce, which was discussed and passed at the extraordinary meeting of the Chambers of Commerce held at Shanghai last year. Inasmuch as this latter item has already been submitted to the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce, it was decided to communicate with the Ministry in question on the matter.

G. O. P. Faces Big Congress Losses

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Nov. 4.—Speculation is rife regarding the results of the impending elections. It is generally agreed that the present unwieldy Republican majority in Congress will be materially reduced; likewise that the reduced Republican majority will include elements dangerously subversive to party discipline, the tendency being to replace ultra-Conservatives by Liberals and Radicals.

HONGKONG OPIUM IMPORTS FOR 1921 WERE 699 CHESTS

Most Of Supplies Are Brought In From India

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 2.—The International Anti-Opium Association supplies the following from the summary of Hongkong imports and exports for the year 1921:

	Chests
Opium in stock at the end of 1920	329
Imported during 1921	699

Making a total of 987 chests of which 225 were imported from Persia and the balance from India.

During the year 1921, 560 chests were exported, leaving 427 chests for use in the Colony. Of this amount the Government boiled for use in the Colony 200½ and thus carried over a balance in hand on December 31, 1921 of 226½ chests.

In defence of the Government monopoly Hongkong has maintained that owing to increased selling price and Government control opium imports for use in the Colony have fallen from 340 chests per annum in 1914, when the monopoly was established, to 120 chests in 1920.

The Government, however, has now discovered that this is not sufficient to meet the demands of the Hongkong opium smokers owing to the recent stringent measures against the smuggling of Chinese opium into the Colony and has, therefore, made application to the Indian Government for an increase of opium imports from ten chests a month to twenty chests, which application, after the required six months' notice, is due to operate in January 1923.

The Association is informed through the Society in London that vigorous protests have already been sent to the League of Nations, and Sir William Collins has promised to ask questions in the House of Commons on the subject as soon as the House of Commons assembles.
